Quench Announces Acquisition of Scott Pure Water, LLC

(King of Prussia, PA) – Quench, a Culligan Company and a leading provider of filtered water solutions for businesses across the United States and Canada, announced today that it has acquired substantially all of the assets of Scott Pure Water, LLC, a point-of-use water filtration company based in Sonoma County, California. This is Quench’s seventh acquisition in the last seven months, including Krystal Kleer in Connecticut, Mirex in Houston, Texas, Smart Water in New Jersey, Pure Planet Water in Southern California, Jonli Water Services in Montreal, and Flowline in Edmonton.

Scott Pure Water was established in 2015 and grew to be one of the top Pure Water Technology dealers on the West Coast. They have been successful in acquiring long-term, premium customers with strong recurring revenue streams. This acquisition adds hundreds of customers in the high growth San Francisco Bay metro area and bolsters Quench’s industry-leading portfolio of more than 160,000 installed rental units across North America.

“We are thrilled to have acquired Scott Pure Water, one of our independent dealers, demonstrating our continued success in providing attractive exit opportunities to the great entrepreneurs that form our extensive and growing network of Pure Water Technology, Wellsys and Bluline dealers,” said Todd Peterson, COO of Quench. “Our Indirect Dealer business unit is dedicated to supporting our independent dealers throughout their stages of development from start-up through growth and exit.”

David Scott, owner of Scott Pure Water, said: “Quench was great to deal with through the acquisition process, especially during these challenging times. Being a Pure Water Technology dealer, they were the logical buyer, and I am confident our customers will be pleased with this outcome.”

This is the first acquisition since the merger of Quench with Culligan on March 30, 2020 and demonstrates Culligan’s ongoing commitment to be the leading provider of consumer-focused and sustainable water solutions and services around the world.
